

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A communication support apparatus comprises an acquisition unit configured to acquire source-language information represented in a first language, a first
5 determination unit configured to determine a level of importance of the source-language information, a setting unit configured to set, based on the level of importance, an accuracy of translation with which the source-language information is translated into 10 corresponding language information represented in a second language, and a translation unit configured to translate the source-language information into the corresponding language information with the accuracy.